The Tools Winter Rescue

By Mike Bannerman

Winter had arrived in Twin Falls! The Tools started the day doing their favourite thing — a race down the slope!

Hector Hammer skied fast, chasing Roxie and Paz on their snowboards. Roxie was always the fastest.

"Not today!" said Paz.

Faster, faster, FASTER!

Roxie won, as always.

"Right" said Hector.

"Now let's get to work!"

Charlie Chainsaw lives and works at the Timber Yard — the place every Tool in Town comes to for timber and logs. Today Charlie had a huge delivery to get out! His red Telehandler could grab an enormous stack of logs in one go, lifting them high and loading them straight onto his yellow truck.

Charlie loved this part of the job. Load after load, log after log — nothing stopped Charlie once he got going!

Over at the garage, Diesel Drill was hard at work with Sam the Spanner. Charlie's truck needed snow tyres fitted — without them, he'd slip and slide and get stuck on the snowy roads!

Sam spotted Diesel had nearly forgotten the antifreeze too. Without it, the engine would freeze solid.

Sam pointed at things. Diesel wasn't really listening. Let's just hope Diesel gets this one right. He usually doesn't.

Hector, Paz and Roxie were busy building a snowman and playing in the snow!

The moment Wayne Wrench arrived, Paz leapt out and pelted him with snowballs. Wayne never has patience when it comes to Paz. He rolled him up in the snow, turning him into a giant snowball.

" That's enough! " said Hector. " We've got work to do! "

The Tools arrived at the Stoneyard and Sheldon the Sledgehammer had a problem. " No sand today, I'm afraid " he said. " Shamus the Shovel was meant to deliver it, but he hasn't turned up. I hope he's not stuck in this snow. "

They needed sand to mix with cement. Without it, no bricklaying could be done.

Paz was still brushing snow out of his hair bristles.

The Tools headed to Lorenzo's Bistro to warm up — Lorenzo the watering can made the nicest drinks in Twin Falls, hot chocolate, milkshakes, whatever you fancied.

Lorenzo loves his customers — as long as they love his drinks, say nothing but kind words, and never — ever — touch his flowers!

While the others warmed up inside, Paz wandered outside — and spotted Lorenzo's flowers. Just a couple, he thought. Nobody would even notice. Nobody had ever told Paz the rules. Or maybe they had. Paz wasn't really listening.

Lorenzo glanced out of the window at exactly the wrong moment. There was Paz. Holding a bunch of his flowers. Lorenzo was furious!

" MY FLOWERS! " Lorenzo shot outside like a flash.
He scooped up Paz and threw him as far as he could!

Paz sailed through the air — and landed with a soft crunch in a pile of hay.

But Paz wasn't done just yet...

Before he left, Paz decided to snowboard straight across the roof of Lorenzo's bistro.

Lorenzo looked up. What on earth was going on now?

WHOOOSH! Down came the snow — all of it — right on top of him! All that poked out of the giant snow pile was his spout — and his moustache.

" Oh, Paz " sighed Lorenzo.

With Lorenzo dusted off and almost calm again,
Paz stayed behind to help clean up — he promised to catch up afterwards.

Hector's orange 4x4 was built for days like this — chunky tyres, a roaring engine, ready for anything.
Off they went!

They hadn't gone far
when they spotted Charlie Chainsaw with his tyres stuck in the snow.

" Diesel put the wrong tyres on! " said Charlie.

" Not snow tyres at all. Now I'm stuck! "

Roxie, Wayne and Hector hooked up some snow chains around his tyres — just the thing to give Charlie's wheels the grip to pull through the heavy snow!

Paz finally caught up. He was, as ever, no help at all — far too busy making snow angels in a nearby drift.

Further and further up the mountain they drove, and the higher they climbed, the snowier it got — so snowy they couldn't even see the road anymore!

They spotted animals everywhere — bears, wolves, and one very big moose. Roxie grabbed her camera. Click! She loved taking pictures of absolutely everything.

Paz pulled a silly face at the moose. The moose looked back at him, quite confused.

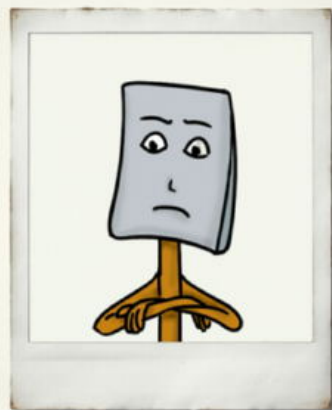

They found Shamus at last. His big purple truck was completely broken down. Diesel Drill had forgotten to put antifreeze in the engine and now it was frozen solid.

Oh, Diesel. Again.

Shamus looked like he'd had enough.

They hooked up a tow rope and pulled his truck all the way back to town.

While the others towed Shamus' truck back to town, Paz and Roxie decided to race down the mountain instead!

"LOOK OUT!" shouted Roxie.

The moose from earlier remembered Paz — and thought he wanted to play!

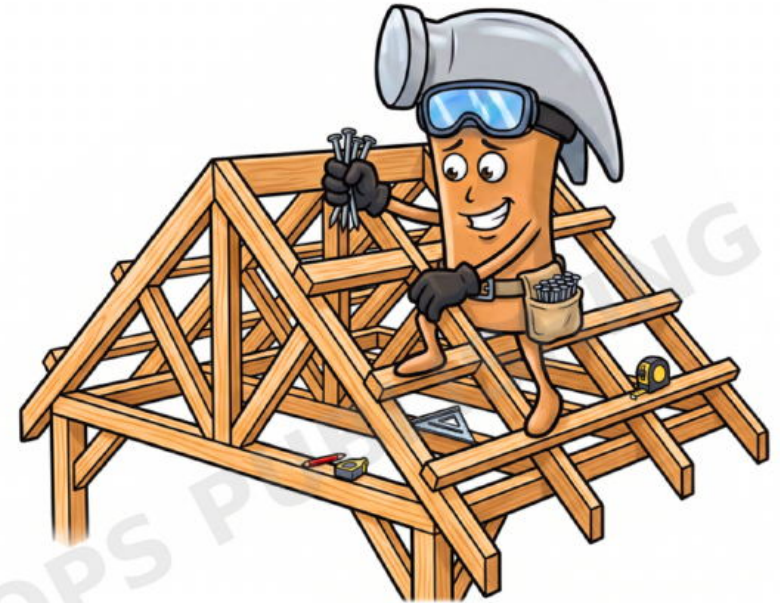

Paz snowboarded faster than ever!

He was winning this race. Definitely not because he wanted to.

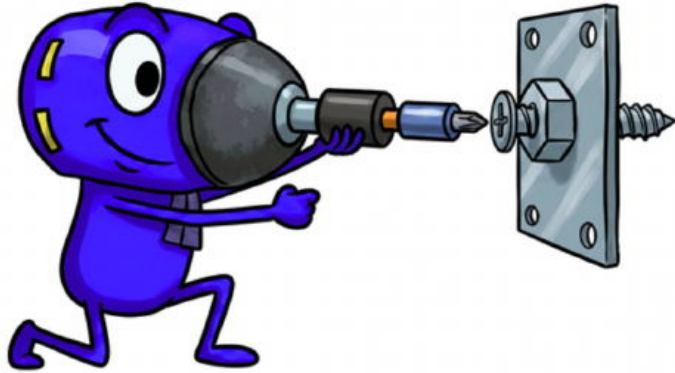

The moose kept chasing and Paz was enjoying the madness! Then he had an idea. Up he went, snowboarding straight over the roof of Lorenzo's bistro!
The moose, however, had other plans. He didn't jump.
He didn't stop.
CRASH! Straight through the front of Lorenzo's bistro
he went! Oh dear.
Paz landed upside down in a big pile of snow, only his feet sticking out.

Now the Tools had work to do — and fast!
Lorenzo's bistro needed fixing right away.

Everyone came to help.
And when the Tools worked together, nothing could stop them! Apart from Bobby Bucket - his water had frozen!

As crazy as the Tools could be, one thing was always true — whatever they broke, they always came together to fix.

Lorenzo's bistro was fixed and it was better than ever before.

Lorenzo loves his freshly built bistro. And the Tools love building — especially after a bit of chaos!

The idea of The Tools came to me when I was 7 years old. I was doodling on a piece of paper and drew a saw with a face and arms and legs. Soon, more tool characters were created and my mum, dad and close family would always encourage me to make something of it.

Years later, I used the same idea and stories and created these children's books. With a Christian upbringing, I've always had a strong relationship with God and I truly believe He blesses us with ideas and things we might not even think to use. So for every idea or story that I write or have written, to God be the glory. Please find the inspirational Bible quote at the back of each of my books and may God bless each and every one of you.

" A new commandment I give to you:
Love one another, as I have loved you. "

John 13:34
